New England Construction Completes Addition On Heartlab In Westerly, RI

Westerly, RI (May 19, 2005): New England Construction announced today it has completed an expansion project on Heartlab Cardiac Solutions of Westerly, Rhode Island. The expansion increased the building size by 24,000 square feet, to a total footprint of 39,000 square feet.

New England Construction designed and built the original building in 2000. The new project will added a new canopy and metal panel monolith allowing the expansion to blend with the original construction. The expansion will be used for further research and production space as well as new offices and storage.

Heartlab Cardiac Solutions, founded in 1994, specializes in the development of cardiac imaging software and the integration of cardiac imaging network systems. Today, Heartlab's customer base includes many of the nation's leading heart centers as well as numerous international, regional and community hospitals.
