New England Construction Begins Addition At Their Headquarters In Rumford, RI

Rumford, RI (May 19, 2005): New England Construction announced today it has begun the expansion of their facility in Rumford, Rhode Island. The new addition will add 6,000 square feet on the first floor, bringing the total footprint to 8,500 square feet.

The original building was constructed in 1935 as a part of the Washburn Wire Company – one the first companies in the United States to manufacture insulated wire. The building served the employees of Washburn Wire as a diner and company store. President David Sluter described New England Construction's tenure in the building: "after purchasing the building in 1988, we renovated it several times and converted the basement into office space. It has served us well as we grew from only ten employees in 1988 to over thirty today. With the help of Vision 3 Architects, we have designed our new space to accommodate our changing needs and to reflect the success of our company."
